Amazon Borrows $18.5 Billion It Doesn't Need in New Debt Sale

(Bloomberg) -- Amazon.com Inc. sold bonds to refinance debt and buy back stock, as cheap borrowing costs prove too tempting to resist even for a company with tens of billions of dollars in cash. The online retail giant issued $18.5 billion of debt in eight parts. The longest portion, a 40-year security, yields 95 basis...

Is eBay Stock a Buy?

Admittedly, eBay could again languish in the near term as consumers begin to put the pandemic behind them and return to offline shopping. What eBay investors are asking is not necessarily what happens in the next few quarters, but whether management has leveraged the sales surge in 2020 to place itself on a lon...
